LARGE CLAIMS AGAINST BANK

NORTHWESTERN BANK, BURLINGTON JCT., SUED FOR $63,696.42

FRAUD CHARGES MADE

$55,769.42 Asked as Preferred Claims, Which Are Filed in Circuit Court.

Charging fraudulent appropriation of money and notes of depositors by officers of the defunct Northwestern Bank of Burlington Junction, claims totaling $63,696.42, with interest, have been filed against the assets of the bank by five persons of Burlington Junction. Of the total, $55,769.42 and interest was filed as preferred claims.

The suits were filed late yesterday with W. R. Tilson, circuit clerk.

The largest claim against the defunct institution, of which S. E. Evans is the special deputy commissioner in charge, was made by W. P. Cummins, administrator of the estate of Patrick Cummins, who died March 15, 1925.

W. P. Cummins petition charges that during his life-time, Patrick Cummins had been a customer of the bank and had deposited large sums on ordinary checking accounts. It alleges that the cashier, for fraudulent purposes of cheating and defrauding the late Mr. Cummins, represented to him and caused him to believe that if he would turn his deposited money over to the bank, the institution would invest it for him in the solvent notes of other customers, and deliver them to him or hold them in the vaults for safe keeping.

The petition states that on various dates from September 10, 1920, to November 10, 1925, inclusive, the deceased, for the purpose of investment, turned over to the bank by drawing his checks, payable to the bank against his deposited money, a sum aggregating $50,369.40; that the bank received the money and caused Mr. Cummins to believe it had been invested for him by furnishing a written list of names of purported note makers. The petition further states that for the purpose of deceiving the late Patrick Cummins the bank entered on his pass book various credits of interest, which it claimed to collect, so that he died in the belief the bank had invested his money.

Embezzlement Charged.

It further states that the representations were false, fraudulent and untrue, and instead the bank embezzled the money and appropriated it to its use, so that the money became lost to the Cummins' estate. The claim is made the money went into the bank to swell its assets and the finance commission now holds the assets of the bank, which are more than are sufficient to pay the claim. This constitutes a preferred claim, the plaintiff states, for which interest at 6 per cent is asked.

A second count by W. P. Cummins states that when the bank closed, the estate of P. C. Cummins had on deposit $4,927.02 as a checking account, which amount is now owed to the estate.

W. P. Cummins, as well as the following named plaintiffs, state they have made claims against the bank but that their claims have been disallowed by the commissioner.

Other claims filed against the bank allege that the plaintiffs turned over to the bank by giving checks against their deposits, money for notes which the bank purported to own, but which were never delivered to the claimants.

Emmett Cummins, in filing his preferred claim for $1,400, with interest at 6 per cent from October 4, 1925, alleges that the bank sold him two notes, purporting to be owned by it, one signed by F. W. Nicholas for $1,000, dated April 4, 1925; and the other signed by Anna Huffman, for $400, dated April 4, 1925. He states that at the end of six months from April 4, the bank collected and accredited to his account upon his pass book the interest then due; that in October of the same year without his knowledge or consent the bank unlawfully appropriated and converted both the notes depriving him of the ownership and benefits thereof; that the notes now constitute a part of the assets in the hands of the finance department.

Sues In Four Counts.

Gerald Cummins, in four counts, totalling $2,300, filed suit for this amount, plus interest and costs. He alleges that on August 12, 1924 the bank sold him two notes, represented to be owned by it; one note for $100 signed by Fletcher Jones, dated August 2, 1924, drawing 6 per cent and

AN EXCEPTION IN ROAD CASE

OWNERS OF LAND OBJECT TO CARR BRIDGE ROUTE.

NO DAMAGE ALLOWED

Will Be Deprived of Land and Caused To Expend Large Sums, Says Reply to Commissioners.

Exceptions today were filed with County Clerk Fred Wright, by Mrs. Belle Williams and Donald Williams, against a report of a commission which assessed no damages for a proposed road, which a petition has asked be established in Polk township east of the Carr bridge.

The exceptors filed four reasons for their exceptions, claiming the commission refused to allow any compensation for the land proposed to be taken and for necessary fences and labor, deprives the exceptors of the use of land and could cause them to lay out and expend large sums of money without any compensation.

The commissioners, A. M. Hazleton of Burlington Junction, M. J. Oliver of Guilford and George Ulmer, jr., of Hopkins, viewed the location of the proposed road to extend 110 rods east of the Carr bridge, which is three miles south and three miles east of Maryville.

The report, filed June 1, allowed no damages to property owners for land proposed to be taken. The commissioners were appointed by the county court after E. O. Goodspeed, Herman Heitman, Frank Meyer, and others had petitioned the court to establish a road.

The exceptors declared:

1. The report of the commission was the result of bias and prejudice, arbitrarily made without investigation of the merits of the matters.

2. The proposed road takes from the exceptors one and one-half acres of land, valued at more than $150 an acre; yet the report assessed the exceptors no damages for the land.

3. The proposed road requires building of 160 rods of new fences.

4. The proposed road divides the exceptors' farm by cutting off from the main tract of land about sixty acres, which is agricultural and pasture land and will require exceptors to dig wells, put up windmills and pumps on the land before it can be used for purposes adapted.

Skidmore Injunction Case Up Tomorrow

Hearing To Decide Whether It Shall Be Made Permanent.—Arthur Beck To Be Arranged.

The hearing to decide whether a permanent injunction shall be granted five Skidmore citizens to prevent a change in the Skidmore Consolidated school district will be held in circuit court tomorrow before Judge John M. Dawson.

A temporary injunction was granted which prevented the holding of a school election in Skidmore May 28, at which time the proposition was up to vote $75,000 in bonds for a new school house and equipment.

Other legal matters may be presented to the court at tomorrow's adjourned session of the April term. It was thought today that Arthur Beck would be arraigned tomorrow. He is charged with grand larceny and embezzlement.

W. S. Frayme, Los Angeles, Calif., is in Maryville today. Before going to California about twenty-two years ago, Mr. Frayme was a merchant at Hopkins. He has been visiting friends there.

The body will be taken to Ravenwood for burial. It is expected to arrive Saturday.

Mr. Lawson is dead and is buried at Ravenwood.

Among the survivors are the following children: George Lawson, Conception; Mrs. Lullian Florea, Pickering; Mrs. Myrtle DeLong, Ravenwood; Mrs. Stella Porter, who lives near Pickering; Mrs. Bessie Wells, Nebraska; Irvin Lawson, Morrison Lawson, and Mrs. Velma Hantz, Washington.

CHILE ALMOST A U. S. SUBURB

MANY AMERICANS THERE NOW, SAYS VISITOR HERE.

"DROPS IN" ON FRIEND

The Rev. Jesse Smith, Pastor Of Santiago Church, Tells Of Big Development Work.

Although he is on another continent, a United States citizen may feel quite at home in Chile, South America, according to the Rev. Jesse Smith, a visitor in Maryville today.

The Reverend Mr. Smith and his family came from Santiago, Chile, and "just dropped in" last night on Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wells, 606 Normal avenue. Mr. Wells and the minister became quite well acquainted when the former was in South America.

The Reverend Mr. Smith is the pastor of a large Presbyterian church in Santiago. He is spending a leave of absence in this country and is driving across the continent to California. There is an American hospital connected with the church which the minister serves.

An outstanding feature about Chile, Mr. Smith pointed out, is the fact that a great many persons from the United States now live there. All the large American business firms have representatives there. Most of the American business, he said, is either in mining or in exporting and importing. An American Business Men's luncheon is held quite often in Cantiago, at which there is an average attendance of from 80 to 100 men, all Americans.

"Usually," he said, "there is a well known American speaker at these luncheons, for the country abounds in travelers from our own land.

Mr. Smith said that a very potential and helpful movement in Chile was one of welfare work among the natives employed by big American firms, such as the Guggenheim Mining Company.

"These firms," he explained, "spend millions of dollars building suitable homes, looking after recreation, and other phases of humanitarian work, even before the natives are employed. The large firms employ a Director of Plays and Games whose specific duty is to oversee and to care for the recreation of the employees. These men hold the same position in the firm as the head chemist or any other head of a department. They have assistants and really do a worthwhile thing.

The Good Roads movement has also been given noticeable impetus recently. This has been brought about by the great influx of automobiles in Chile. There are all kinds of cars, from a model T Ford to a Rolls Royce. There are many makes of native cars also.

Auxiliary of V. F. W. Names Two Officers

Delegation Also Is Named to Attend State Convention.—Picnic On June 22.

Mrs. Mary Gault was re-elected trustee for a term of eighteen months at the regular session last night of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Seth Ray David post, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Mrs. Karl Tarpley was appointed guard to succeed Mrs. Grace Pennington, who resigned the office when she moved to Hopkins a few weeks ago.

Seth Ray David Post No. 442 and the Auxiliary jointly gave $26.00 to the refugees in the Mississippi flood district. Other business included the naming of a delegation from the V. F. W. and from the auxiliary to attend the V. F. W. convention at Jefferson City on June 17, 18 and 19. The delegation named includes Mr. and Mrs. Ray O'Grady, Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Person, Miss Margaret Davison, Mrs. S. T. Gile, Mrs. Mary Gault, Miss Dessa Gault, and Mrs. R. L. McDougal.

On June 22, the V. F. W. and the auxiliary will hold their meeting at the college park, at which time a picnic supper will be held. Fifteen members attended last night's meeting. Mrs. Edith Knox, president, presided.

S. T. C. Student to Teach at Essex, Ia.

Miss Mary Elsie Prager has accepted a position at Essex, Ia., as teacher of home economics and music in the high school there. Miss Prager, whose home is in Chillicothe, is a graduate of Hardin College at Mexico, Mo., and a former student at the University of Missouri. She is now taking work at the State Teachers College here.

College Enrollment Believed About 1,150

Figures Are Not Yet Available on Conservatory Students.—Nearly 1,000 in College Itself.

Approximately 1150 students are now enrolled for the summer term at the State Teachers College. Records of Miss Nell Hudson, registrar, show that almost 1,000 persons are registered in the College and College High School. Figures are not now available on the Conservatory of Music, but there are believed to be between 150 and 200 persons taking work exclusively in this department.

It is believed that the total enrollment this summer will be about the same as last year, when there were close to 1,200 students enrolled in all departments of the school.

PAVED ROADS PAY OWN WAY

COST IS SAVED EACH YEAR, DECLARES HUGH STEPHENS.

BORNE BY AUTO USER

Conservative Estimate Shows Each Motorist Profits $72 Annually, Says Member Of Commission.

Columbia, Mo., June 9.—The mere mention of a $100,000,000 road bond issue seems a tremendous sum as to frighten most people into opposition to the project without giving it a great deal of thought, said Hugh Stephens, member of the Missouri State Highway Commission, while here.

"We all know," Stephens said, "that figures can be made to prove anything, but a little careful study will show that good roads are an economy and will result in the saving of many millions of dollars each year. One of the most important findings of an exhaustive study of roads by the commission is relative to the economy effected by the use of different types of surface. It is know that concrete roads represent a saving of 2.6 cents a mile over ordinary dirt roads and 1.7 cents a mile over the best gravel roads.

"Applying these savings to the Missouri State Highway system, there are 7640 miles of highway in the proposed state system and 650,000 automobiles in the state, according to present registration. These automobiles annually pay a tax of $37,000,000 against construction of roads, which is $17,200,000 a year.

"This indicates that if the system were completed in Missouri with the present car operation, the highway system would pay all it cost each year and $20,000,000 more."

Stephens estimated that in 1932 there will be 900,000 automobiles registered in Missouri. With such a registration, the saving would be $35,000,000 a year, he pointed out. If funds are made available, he declared, the state system can be completed by 1932. Present plans, he said, calls for halt the mileage of concrete and half gravel.

The entire cost of the highway system is borne by the automobile user, Stephens declared, through gasoline tax and registration fees. The average car owner pays $21 dollars a year as his total cost of the highways. By a conservative estimate, based on research being conducted, the highway system provides a saving of $72 a year in operating an automobile, Stephens said.

Capture Escaped Convict at Vienna

Jefferson City, June 9.—Thurlow Parker, convict, who escaped Tuesday from a prison farm near here was captured today at the Vienna, Maries county.

He was serving a two-year sentence for forgery.

Repairs Completed at Fourth and Dunn

Barricades on a portion of the paving at Fourth and Dunn streets were taken down today and traffic allowed to make use of the middle section of the highway again.

A defect in paving, where the mixture had proved faulty, was remedied this week by the contractors, Cook & O'Brien.

Return From Illinois.

Mrs. Mary A. Phares and her nephew, Phares O. Sigler, returned yesterday morning from a visit with relatives at Decatur, Ill.

RADIO TO JOIN IN RECEPTION

ALL PROMINENT STATIONS LINKED FOR LINDBERGH DAY.

TO ARRIVE SATURDAY

Coolidge Approves Recommendation to Appoint Flier a Colonel in Air Corps Reserve.

Washington, June 9.—The cruiser Memphis with Charles Lindbergh aboard will reach the Navy Yard here about 11 a. m., Saturday, barring unforseen delays, the Navy Department was advised today by Vice-Admiral Burrage, who is aboard.

A Colonel Twice.

Washington, June 9.— President Coolidge today approved recommendations of the War Department for appointment of Charles Lindbergh as colonel in the Air Corps Reserve.

This makes Lindbergh doubly a colonel, as he was raised to that rank in the Missouri National Guard last week.

Fifty Stations To Broadcast.

New York, June 9.—Fifty broadcasting stations, the largest number ever to put on the air a radio program will be interconnected for the Lindbergh radio day program Saturday. Practically every station of prominence from coast to coast will participate in the five-hour program in honor of Colonel Lindbergh.

Twenty-five of the fifty stations will remain hooked up for an entertainment program which will run until 9 o'clock, when the entire half hundred will be back for the proceedings of the reception to Lindbergh by the Minnesota Society and the National Press Club.

Stock Market to Close.

New York, June 9.—The governors of the New York Stock Exchange voted today to close the stock market next Monday, when New York officially welcomes Colonel Linobergh.

2,000 Troops to Receive Him.

Washington, June 9.—Two thousand troops, all available Army, Navy, Marine and National Guard Reserves will be called to help Saturday when Lindbergh arrives.

Dean's Wife, Native of Maryville, Dies

Mrs. Florence Royalty Athearn, Brookline, Mass., Born Here.—Husband With Boston University.

Special to Democrat-Forum:

Brookline, Mass., June 9.—Mrs. Florence Royalty Athearn, wife of Dean Walter Scott Athearn of the Boston University School of Religious Education and Social Service, died yesterday morning at the Deaconess hospital at Brookline where she had been for the past two weeks following an operation. She had been in poor health for the past month.

Mrs. Athearn was born in Maryville, Mo., in 1872 and was the daughter of the late J. H. and Mary (Soule) Royalty. She received her education in the schools of Missouri and Iowa and was graduated from the Hedrick Teachers College at Hedrick, Ia., after which she taught in the schools of Iowa County, Iowa. On June 15, 1894, she married Dean Athearn, then an instructor. She is survived by her husband and a son, Clarence R. Athearn, an instructor at the Boston University, and a daughter, Miss Gertrude E. Athearn, a teacher in the schools of Roxbury, and a brother, Edward Thomas of New Haven, Conn.

The Democrat-Forum was unable to find anyone here who knew the Royalty family.

Disarmament Ends Without Single Clash

Rear Admiral Latimer Reports Condition In Nicaragua to Navy Department.

Washington, June 9.—Completion of disarmament of Nicaraguan government and liberal troops by American marines was reported to the Navy department today by Rear Admiral Latimer, who said it had been accomplished without a single clash or without a drop of bloodshed in any way incident to the disarming.

The disarming began May 13 and ended midnight June 6, when agreement to pay $10 for each rifle turned in ceased.

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Purcell of Conception, were Maryville visitors today.

JARDINE SEES PROSPECT FOR HIGHER WHEAT

Crop Shortage Naturally Will Tend to Increase Price, Secretary Believes.

Washington, June 9.—Hope for better prices for wheat than have hitherto prevailed was held out today by Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, after a call at the White House.

He pointed out that the yield this year will be lower than last year's. The crop shortage, he said, will naturally tend to increase wheat prices.

"There has been some drought in Oklahoma and Colorado. In other parts of the West which I have visited, the crop is good."

Winter Condition 72.2 Per Cent.

Washington, June 9.—The condition of winter wheat on June 1 was 72.2 per cent of normal, the Agriculture Department estimated today.

Spring wheat was reported 86.8 per cent of normal.

REDS CHARGE BRITISH PLOT

SOVIET DOCUMENT SPEAKS OF "TERRORIST WAR."

VIOLENT ACTS CITED

Assassinations, Fires and Bombings Among Incidents Listed in Accusation.

Moscow, Russia, June 9.—Great Britain was charged with leading a terrorist war against Soviet Russia in a government document issued today. French interests were also accused.

The murder of Ambassador Voikov in Warsaw, the bombing of a Communist business club in Leningrad and other acts of violence were attributed to British influence.

"Britain's hand is seen sufficiently clear," in the Voikov assassination, the paper said.

The paper went back as far as 1925 in citing acts of violence in which British influence was seen. Attempted assassinations, fires and bombings were included in the list.

"It is quite evident the British government is leading a war trying to do everything possible to disrupt our peaceful labor," the document concluded.

Two Men to Attempt Around World Flight

San Francisco, June 9.—Lieutenant Leight Wade and Linton Wells will start around the world flight from San Francisco next month according to a telegram received today by Mayor Rolph from Wells in New York. The fliers will attempt to circle the globe in fifteen days, the telegram said.

"Bunk" Says Warden, of Ray Carroll Talk

Prisoner Talks as Rationally as Any Man Penitentiary Official Declares.

Atlanta, Ga., June 9.—Earl Carroll, despite what his relatives say, talks as rationally as any man, Warden J. W. Snook of the federal penitentiary said today.

"It's all bunk about Carroll not being able to talk. I conversed with him and heard him talk about his family affairs as rationally as anyone," said the man who for one year will be official keeper of the Broadway producer.

The warden's statement was the first indication from any source that Carroll since his breakdown two months ago, had possibly not lost his mental composure.

What legal means relatives of the prisoner intend to use in an effort to free Carroll remained in doubt.

Two Men Appointed to Baker's Staff

Jefferson City, June 9.—Former Supreme Court Judge Robert Otto, of this city, and Dr. Lloyd Lindsay, Poplar Bluff, were appointed colonels on the personal staff of Governor Sam Baker today. Otto was appointed a member of the Supreme Court in 1925 but was defeated for election last year.

Mrs. I. T. Pryor, jr., and son, Thomas, of Fort Stockton, Tex., arrived in Maryville Monday evening to visit Mrs. Pryor's parents, Judge and Mrs. W. C. Ellison, until July 1. Mr. and Mrs. Ellison drove to Kansas City to meet the visitors.

AROUND GLOBE NEXT FLIGHT?

NOT AT ALL IMPOSSIBLE, CHAMBERLIN BELIEVES.

LEVINE SEES AIR LINE

Commercial Possibilities of Transatlantic Traffic Appeal to Flier's Companion.

Berlin, June 9.—A non-stop flight around the globe and a transatlantic commercial airplane line, two projects involving millions of dollars, were proposed today by Clarence Chamberlin and Charles Levine.

True to their training, Chamberlin, the flier, was the one to consider the 30,000-mile world flight, and Levine, the business man, turned to the commercial possibilities which their transatlantic flight and that of Lindbergh have opened up.

Levine said he had formulated a plan to invest $2,000,000 in establishing transatlantic air service, which he hoped to start within a year. Multi-motored planes with a carrying capacity of 2,000 pounds would be used, he said.

Floating Harbors Suggested.

Chamberlin, discussing Levine's plan, said canvas planes would be more practical and that floating harbors at intervals across the ocean would be useful for emergencies.

But the pilot was more interested in the world flight possibility:

"Such a flight is not impossible; it would probably be a 30,000-mile journey. I hope someone will offer one or two million dollars to play with so a suitable plane could be constructed."

It was learned that a member of the British Parliament, had cabled the aviators, asking them to permit him to fly back with them if they decided to go back to America in the Columbia.

Berlin to Name a Street.

Berlin will honor the flight by naming a prominent thoroughfare Columbia street after the Chamberlin plane.

Hundreds of society women have besieged the American embassy with offers to serve as private chaperones of the aviators during their stay in Berlin.

"Commercial aviation in the United States is farther advanced than in Germany," Chamberlin said. "Germany has only sixty flying fields and America has thousands."

Plan Huge Farmers' Meeting in Chicago

Approximately 20,000 Bureau Members Expected in December to Discuss Farm Problems.

Chicago, June 9.—An attempt to have the greatest agricultural gathering in the history of the organization will be made at the annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation December 5, 6 and 7 it was announced today.

Efforts will be made to have at least one delegate from each of the 150,000 bureaus of the national organization.

This would bring approximately 20,000 persons to Chicago to discuss farm problems. One of the features of the meeting will be an exposition featuring agricultural and farm home equipment.

Gasoline Drops Two Cents in Kansas City

No Cut in Price Received Here, Local Standard Oil Employes Announce.

Kansas City, June 9.—Gasoline dropped 2 cents today at Standard Oil filling stations in Greater Kansas City, the company announced. The new price, including tax, is 16.9 cents.

The Standard Oil station had received no notice today of any price cut. The local Standard Oil men contributed the drop in price at Kansas City to a gasoline war.

Mrs. Veda Lynn of Chicago, arrived in Maryville yesterday to visit her niece, Mrs. B. D. Null, and Mr. Null. She will be here for two or three weeks. Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Bantz of Marshall, will come tomorrow for a several days visit with Mr. and Mrs. Null. Dr. Bantz is a brother of Mrs. Null.

Exercise and Games Good in Moderation

They Shouldn't Be Carried to Excess, However, Says U. S. Public Health Head.

Washington, June 9.—Exercises and games taken in moderation and with proper precautions are very beneficial to the body, according to Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, Surgeon General of the U. S. Public Health Service.

"Exercises are of the most benefit when taken in the open air," he said. "It must not be forgotten, however, that if overdone as they are apt to be in competitive athletics, these otherwise beneficial exercises are likely to be harmful.

"Lack of exercise causes certain muscles and organs of the body to become weak and flabby from little use and this condition reacts unfavorably on mental and body health and vigor.

"The general increase in circulation which takes place as a result of exercise benefits all parts of the body. There should be a regular time of day set aside for exercise, just as there are regular hours for meals."

Dr. Cumming said walking is one of the best moderate outdoor exercises. He listed horseback riding, swimming, golf, tennis and handball as other exercises which afford recreation as well as aid to the body.

"Before one engages in any kind of sport or exercise, it is best to have a physical examination made by a competent physician to ascertain whether the heart, lungs, kidneys, arteries and other vital organs are in condition to stand the exertion. This is particularly true of people of middle age and past, especially if they are no longer accustomed to exercise.

"Do not attempt too much," he warned. "One should never play so hard as to feel exhausted or to feel too tired to eat. Sufficient exercise to exhaust is sufficient to harm.

"After all vigorous exercise one should immediately take a warm shower followed by a short moderately cold one. The body should be vigorously rubbed and the clothing changed. This is very important because colds and sore muscles may follow the chilling of the body which results from standing around in clothing soaked with perspiration."

Fake stock salesmen and promoters are said to be quitting Missouri as a result of the work of the better business bureaus in connection with the blue sky department of the state government and because of the publicity the newspapers have given to fake concerns. This is a combination service that will save the people of the state millions of dollars.

due in 90 days; and another signed by Chester Ferguson for $300, dated July 27, 1924, due in four months. He claims the Bank induced him to leave the notes at the bank for safe keeping; and he executed a check for $400, but the bank failed to deliver the notes to him. The second count states that on December 24, 1924, the bank pretended to sell him a note signed by W. R. Miller for $500, dated December 24, 1924, due in six months, drawing 6 per cent interest, alleged to be owned by the bank.

The third count is for a note he purchased from the bank, signed by F. W. Cole for $400, dated January 30, 1925, due May 30, 1925; and the fourth count for a note purchased from the bank, signed by Luther and Irvin Fast, for $600, dated December 5, 1925; and for another signed by Miller Brothers for $400, dated December 18, 1925, both due in six months and drawing 6 per cent interest.

Mary Cummins filed the following claims:

She alleged she bought a note from the bank, signed by T. E. Fordyce, for $1,000, dated November 1, 1923, due in six months; one signed by John Greeley, dated March 30, 1925, for $400, due in six months; one signed by Cyrus Cole for $400, dated March 28, 1925; all with interest at 6 per cent. She claims she bought another note signed by Roy E. Lyle for $500, dated November 15, 1925; one signed by F. C. Manes for $1,000, dated November 1, 1925; another signed by E. Carter for $1,000, dated January 1, 1926; drawing interest at 6 per cent. She claims the bank failed to deliver these notes, after charging off the various sums from her account.

Cliff Brown, in his suit against the Bank, states that on December 4, 1925, he had on deposit in checking account $500, and that on that date made a check against his account payable to the bank and took up one $100 note; the balance of $400 to be applied as a credit on another note he owed the bank. The bank failed to credit his other note with the balance of $400, he claims; and the bank now holds it against him as indebtedness. He asks the court either to direct the bank to reinstate to his account the $400 that he may obtain a set off upon his indebtedness or credit be given him on his indebtedness for $400 with interest.

Says Floods Caused by Clearing of Trees

Removal Of Timber Permits Water To Flow More Quickly, Missouri State Forester Declares.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 9.—The clearing of trees along the streams in Missouri, and in other states, has been largely responsible for recent destructive floods, Frederick Dunlap, Missouri state forester, declared. In the northern and western parts of Missouri the cutting away of the timber has also deprived that section of a cheap and convenient supply of fuel.

"Removal of timber from along the streams permit the water to flow quickly down stream, instead of being held back and passing down slowly by timber and other growths in the woods," Dunlap said in discusing the results of deforestation.

At present, Dunlap said, there is no available supply of trees for replanting, but a nursery has been established by the state forestry department at Cedar City, Mo., for the production of such trees. In the Ozark region of Missouri where timber is plentiful, Dunlap said, the problem is one of productivity and prevention of fire. He declared fire is one agency almost wholly responsible for the low productivity of the Ozark forests.

Sam Hodgdon Will Run for Governor

St. Louis, June 9.—Sam D. Hodgdon, probate judge of St. Louis county and a former member of the Missouri legislature, announced late yesterday he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor in 1929. He is the first to openly announce candidacy for the governorship.

Mexico, Mo., to Have Rodeo for Two Days

Mexico, Mo., June 9.—A two-day rodeo to be staged here tomorrow and Saturday has attracted riders of national reputation as competitors in the contests. Contests are to be held in bulldogging, cowboy and cowgirl riding contests, hippodrome races, and other rodeo and roundup events.

With livestock ranging from the wildest of Texas longhorn steers, imported for the event direct from west Texas, to the finest of Missouri saddle horses, cowboys, cowgirls, rangers, Indians and freelance riders, will parade and perform in the amphitheatre now under construction for the event. It will be the first of its kind in this section of Missouri and will seat approximately 10,000 people.

It has been suggested that it should be easy for the politicians to find the White House in the Black Hills.

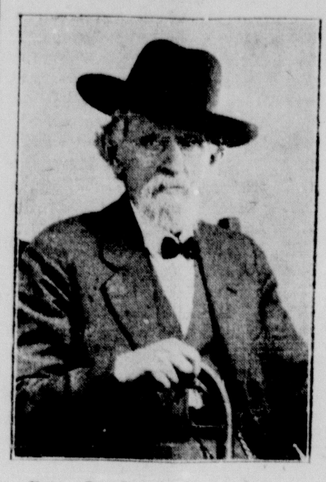
87 Years Old Today



Peter Lowber Cooper Gooden, North Missouri's oldest journalist, saw service in the old days when he hitched two horses to a sleigh and "covered" the county. He wrote for the old Nodaway Democrat and signed himself "Fly-by-Night" and "On-the-Wing."

He has been a resident of Nodaway County for 62 years and came here from the "plains," where he had spent a year and a half. "Cooper," as everyone in Maryville knows him, helped build the Kansas and Pacific Railroad, the first road built west of the Missouri river. He came here and went into the milling business and worked at the Lanning mill on the Platte river east of Maryville. Cooper visited in Kansas City before that city had a railroad and when only a few persons lived there.

Cooper is named for his grandmother, his grandfather, his mother and his father. Several generations of the men in his mother's family had been named Peter Lowber Cooper and so when Cooper arrived he was given the same name with the father's name, Gooden, added, of course.

Seth Shipps, Arkoe, Fined for Speeding, James Conklin, jr., on Drunkenness Charge.

Judge Joseph H. Sayler, police judge, has been clearing up the calender, getting ready to start tomorrow for his trip West. He got rid of a case last night, one early this morning and another this afternoon.

Seth Shipps, giving his address as Arkoe, was fined $5 and $5.65 costs, on a charge of speeding on Main street Sunday night.

James Conklin, jr., of Maryville, was fined $5 this morning on a charge of drunkenness. He was arrested last night by Officer Leo Atherton when a complaint was filed charging that Conklin was found intoxicated on the streets. Atherton also made the Shipp's arrest.

George Maxwell of Quitman waived preliminary hearing before Judge Sayler in justice court this morning, when he was brought before the justice on a charge of grand larceny.

His bond was fixed at $200. He was unable to give bond and was committed to the county jail.

Maxwell is alleged to have stolen a bedstead, mattress and springs, to the value of $33, that were the property of Loren Anderson, near Burlington Junction.

Montana Teacher Serves Here.

Miss Lillian Steinman, instructor of foreign languages in the high school at Sidney, Mont., arrived in Maryville last night to enroll in the State Teachers College here. Miss Steinman was accompanied from Montana by her mother, who lives in Albany and will spend the summer there.

Oklahoma City Visitors Leave.

Mrs. Sam Pinnell and Mrs. Mary Lambert of Oklahoma City, Okla., who have been visiting their sister and daughter, Mrs. Charles McNeal, for three weeks, left this afternoon for their home. They were accompanied by Mrs. McNeal for a month's visit.

Missing Priest Home; Remembers Nothing

Father Francis E. Hagedorn, Former Conception Student, Returns After 16 Months Absence.

Kansas City, Mo., June 9.—Father Francis E. Hagedorn, 30 years old, Catholic priest who disappeared February 6, 1926, returned to Kansas City yesterday and is in St. Joseph hospital.

Announcement of the priest's return was made by Bishop Thomas F. Lillis of the Kansas City diocese of the Catholic church.

"Father Hagedorn has returned and is in the hospital," Bishop Lillis said. "He remembers nothing from the date of his disappearance until yesterday."

According to church officials, Father Hagedorn became conscious of his surroundings and acts yesterday for the first time since his disappearance while sitting in the railroad station in Leavenworth, Kan.

In his pockets were $2. He carried an old style silver watch in place of the valuable gold one he carried when he disappeared.

Not in Clerical Garb.

On entering the room, Bishop Lillis was startled to see the young priest standing before him, dressed in a baggy gray suit.

"Father, where have you been?" inquired the astonished bishop.

In conformance with the Catholic rite, the priest recognized the rank of bishop Lillis by kneeling and kissing the bishop's ring. Straightening himself, his words came slowly in answer to rapid questions by the bishop.

"I don't know, I do not remember."

Because of his apparent mental condition and his appearance of fatigue Bishop Lillis sent Father Hagedorn to the hospital.

He recalls, Father Hagedorn told Bishop Lillis, that two men accosted him the night of his disappearance at Fourteenth and Summit streets.

"One man followed me there from the cathedral," he said. "The other drove up in a Ford coupe just as this man called to me."

One of the men, whom he knew by sight, pinioned his arms behind him and he was forced into the coupe, he asserted.

"I know you, you cur," Father Hagedorn said he told the man.

The priest recalls nothing after this time, he said.

Complains Of Pains.

According to Dr. A. C. Griffith, who is attending him, Father Hagedorn is in a highly nervous condition and complains of an intense pain in the head.

When he disappeared, Father Hagedorn weighed about 160 pounds. He now weighs about 125.

Dr. Griffith will make a thorough examination of Father Hagedorn today, and probably will make an X-ray examination of the priest's head, he said.

Attended Conception College.

Father Hagedorn attended Conception College from 1910 to 1916, where he was known as a "fine young man and a good student." He was a classmate of the Rev. Father Richard Felix, pastor of St. Mary's Church here, while both were students at Catholic University in Washington, D. C.

Father Hagedorn, assistant pastor of the Immaculate Conception cathedral, Eleventh street and Broadway, disappeared the night of February 6, 1926, while supposedly on a sick call.

He did not return and officials of the cathedral became alarmed and notified police the next day, Sunday.

Police and church officials for two days worked on the theory the priest had been kidnaped or murdered, but subsequent events caused them to abandon these theories.

The afternoon of the day Father Hagedorn disappeared he drew $170 virtually exhausting his account, at the West Side State Bank of Commerce.

Drew Money to Pay a Debt.

Asked concerning that, the priest last night said he drew the money to pay a debt. He paid the debt and at the time of the attack had about $25 or $30, he said.

Following the priest's disappearance, his empty billfold, the golden stocks containing holy oils, his sick call book, prayer book, and stoll were found on a vacant lot.

Dentists and Doctors Are Guests at Dinner

Doctors and dentists were entertained with a dinner at Frank Smart's last night by Dr. H. S. Dowell. Among those present were Dr. Frank Wallis, Dr. C. P. Fryer, Dr. C. T. Bell, Dr. Will Wallis, Dr. C. D. Humbred, Barnard, Dr. Roy Cannon, Dr. D. J. Thomas, Dr. Jesse Miller, Dr. W. B. Owen, Dr. R. V. Person and Dr. E. C. Braniger.

To Attend Postmaster's Meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hull left last evening in their car for West Plains, Mo., where Mr. Hull will attend the Missouri Postmasters' association in that city next Monday and Tuesday. On their way, they will stop at Gallatin, where they will be joined by Fred M. Harrison, postmaster and editor. They will stop also at Jefferson City.

This and That

What is a pie stretcher? Or is there such an article?

This question caused some merriment this morning when advice was sought from Reuillard's bakery and the Yehle Tea Room. The story is that the chef at the Howard's restaurant on North Main street told some young ladies who are visiting the Howards to ask for the pie stretcher and the two places called responded with it. What do you think it was? A brick.

"Billy, the Kid," handed the following to The Democrat-Forum about it:

"New novel invention discovered—pie stretchers, made to order, any pie made twice its original size by this new invention just discovered this morning. As a joke the chef sent some young ladies for the pie stretcher and Ye Gods, they found one. The joke was on the chef for it worked."

"Fiddle Webb" reports having seen lots of lightning bugs of late and says it means warm growing weather is at hand. He has watched the sign for many years and says the lightning bug has never lied to him.—Hopkins Journal.

It is rumored that the Farmers Trust Company and the Democrat-Forum boys are going to meet in baseball. It also is rumored that some of the Democrat-Forum boys' checks are going to be used for bats—wooden, you know.

If the baseball game does come off one of the women members of the staff says that if the day is warm she will be a baseball fan. Don't shoot.

Legitimate reason for murdering a friend one meets on the street: "Nice day today isn't it? Warm though." Especially when one has been walking ten long blocks through the sweltering sun.

Foot note-2—This calendar also may be turned into a song and may be sung to the tune of "Home Sweet Home."

"Missed! Missed! Missed!"

This exclamation, repeated several times, aroused the curiosity of a Maryville mother who went to the door to see what her daughter could be playing.

Neighborhood children were lined-up on two sides throwing rocks at each other.

"Mother we're playing 'hitting-on-the-head,' come on and play," the child cried in delight.

The only advantage to the game was that none of the children could throw straight.

Instead of reviewing new books Miss Claire Wallace Flynn turned her monthly book talk in the May issue of The Elks Magazine into a question and answer form. Here are a few of the questions she asked. You can find the answers following the questions, but don't look:

1. What book was written with the express intention of rousing public opinion against slavery in the Southern States of America?
2. Who wrote the words of "The Star Spangled Banner?"
3. What event inspired Kipling's famous poem "The Betrothed," in which occurs the line—
"And a woman is only a woman, but a good cigar is a smoke?"
4. What is the title of Robert Louis Stevenson's great buccaneer story for boys?
5. How old was Nathaniel Hawthorne when he began to write "The Scarlet Letter?"
6. What English scholar first translated the Bible into English?
7. Where will you find the adomnition:
"Go to the ant, thou sluggard,
Consider his ways, and be wise?"
8. In what well known romance does a prince change places with a beggar boy?
9. When was the marvelous library of Alexandria totally destroyed?
10. What classic has in its preface 79 quotations by authors—all about whales?

THE ANSWERS.

1. "Uncle Tom's Cabin."
2. Francis Scott Key.
3. A breach of promise case occurring in 1885 in which a man had to choose between his sweetheart and his cigar.
4. "Treasure Island."
5. Fifty years old.
6. John Wycliffe.
7. Proverbs, 6:6-11.
8. "The Prince and the Pauper."
9. 391 A. D., by Theophilus.
10. "Moby Dick."

Strawberries! Strawberries! Everyone who has a vine has berries, we presume, and fine big ones, too. They are mighty fine fruit but getting them picked is not so easy. Mrs. Oliver Wilson picked 31 gallons from her patch in one picking and the report goes that Mrs. Leman Morehouse picked and canned 17 quarts in one day last week, and did her house work, too.—Hopkins Journal.

Veterans to Sponsor Carnival Next Week

Isler Greater Shows, Owned By "Sunday School Showman," To Open Engagement Monday.

Under the auspices of the Veterans Association, the Isler Greater Shows, a carnival company, will open a week's engagement in Maryville next Monday. J. B. Parker, special agent for the shows, was making advance arrangements today. The old Fair Grounds will be used.

Louis Isler, owner of the Isler Greater Shows, is known in carnival circles as the "Sunday school showman," because of the high standard of his show, the advance agent declared. Isler, a native Kansan, started twenty years ago with one merry-go-round, which was carried on hay-racks. Now his shows are carried by twenty double-length cars, which will arive in Maryville over the Burlington railroad Sunday afternoon. The public is invited to the unloading.

The first act of the carnival owner, it was declared, would be to invite the sheriff and prosecuting attorney to look over the shows and concessions and their rulings will be complied with.

In addition to the various concessions, the company will have twelve shows and at least five rides, it was stated. An animal sideshow, a minstrel, an athletic show, a palace of illusions, and a speedway on which monkey drivers race in automobiles are featured.

Hopkins' Huge Rain Year Ago This Week

The Hopkins Journal recalls that it was a year ago this week that that vicinity had the torrential rain which caused farmers to lose hogs and chickens, galore, the water running into hog houses that had never before or since been flooded. The 102 river slopped over in the low places and all the small streams left their banks, culverts and small bridges being washed away, the rain doing thousands of dollars worth of damage, even damaging the big Harris river bridge to such an extent that a new one to take its place is just now being finished. Corn on the bottom land was drowned out and that on the ridge washed out.

"So here's hoping that such a down pour will not be repeated this season," the Journal fervently hopes.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, June 9.—Although wheat was nervous and erratic most of the session, prices did not get far from yesterday's closing figures. The cash demand in wheat is reported better. The advance early in the market met with selling and prices eased off. Weather conditions continued favorable.

Corn was weak with considerable early liquidation. The indifferent cash demand, with prices 1 to 1½ cents lower, tended to check buying.

Oats were easy at the start but steadied later. Trade was quiet with the cash market unchanged.

Provisions were quiet and steady.

More Road Contracts to Be Let on June 24

Nodaway County Not in List of Those Where Work Is to Be Done.—39 Miles Gravel.

Jefferson City, June 9.—There will be another road contract letting by the state highway engineer Friday, June 24. It will cover construction of thirty-nine miles of gravel or chat roads, nearly twenty-nine miles of graded earth, three and a half miles of chats and rock asphalt and ten and a half miles of concrete, or a total of nearly eighty miles.

The contracts also will cover construction of eight bridges and the repair and painting of the bridge over the Eleven Point River on route No. 42 in Oregon County.

Cost of the construction under the contracts is estimated by the state highway engineer at $1,200,000.

The counties which will be affected are Caldwell, Sullivan, Shelby, Clay, Jefferson, St. Francois, Barry, Dade Newton, Greene, Oregon and Stoddard.

Nearly sixteen miles of the graded earth is on the Holt and Liberty highway in Clay County. The bulk of the concrete to be contracted for is on route 259 in Jefferson County east of Cedar Hill, and 5.133 miles on the Desloge-Farmington highway in St. Francois County.

A NEW TYPE TOURNAMENT

TWO-BALL FOURSOMES TO BE PLAYED AT COUNTRY CLUB.

TAKE TURNS SWATTING

Eighty Golfers Are Paired Off for Event Sunday.—The First of a Series.

Something new, something different. At least the two-ball foursome to be held at the Maryville Country Club Sunday will be an innovation here.

The two-ball foursome is the first of a series of tournaments that the tournament committee of the Country Club is arranging for its membership this summer. The tournament will be played off in one day.

Eighty members of the club have been paired off to vie for honors. The drawings were announced this morning by the committee, which announced that anyone left out of the drawings might report at No. 1 Tee and a foursome will be arranged.

Three points will be counted toward final score in this tournament, in which a participant gets a chance to whack the ball only every other stroke. The points to be counted in the nine-hole matches are combined medal score, hole scores and low scores.

The players are requested by the tournament committee to get in touch with their partners and then arrange with their opponents a time for the match.

The Pairings.

Order and Disorder---Lindbergh at Brussels and London

Tousel-headed as ever, but spick and span otherwise, was Captain Lindbergh when he arrived in Brussels to visit King Albert. Here he is leaving the Brussels aerodrome after an orderly reception. The busy newspaper artist at the right is sketching him as he walks. At the left, a Belgian Air Force member carries a great bouquet presented to Lindbergh when he stepped from his plane.

The "Spirit of St. Louis" was just coming to rest on Croydon Field, London, and thousands of persons were breaking police lines in a rush for it, as this picture was taken. Captain Lindbergh was almost mobbed when the two masses of frantic humanity came together.

PLAN SPORTS AT COLLEGE

TENNIS, BASEBALL AND OTHER GAMES THIS SUMMER.

TO ORGANIZE TEAMS

Swimming Meet Will Be Held Later—Pool May Be Opened to Public One Night a Week.

An extensive program of intramural sports for men of the State Teachers College has been arranged by H. Frank Lawrence, director of athletics at the local institution. Beginning next Monday, there will be tournaments in tennis, horseshoes, basketball, playground baseball, and volley ball, and later in the summer there will be a swimming meet.

The baseball tournament should be one of the most interesting features of the summer sports. There will likely be eight teams of ten men each. A member of the College faculty will captain each team. Karl Kettering, dramatics instructor, will lead the Y. M. C. A. team, L. M. Eck will captain one from the Sigma Tau Gamma fraternity, U. G. Whiffen will recruit one from his industrial arts department, and R. A. Kinnaird has been asked to band his agriculture students into a team.

In addition, all other students wishing to take part in the sport will be divided into other teams, which will be led by Coach Lawrence, M. E. Seleeman, William L. Mapel, and C. H. Withington.

All students who sign for the basketball tournament will be divided into teams, with varsity letter men as the captains. In addition there will likely be a faculty team.

There will be a singles and a doubles tournament in tennis, and the volley ball tournament will be held when baseball and basketball are out of the way.

Mr. Lawrence also plans to have a faculty golf tournament. Each faculty member who plays will be rated, and handicaps will be given.

The swimming met will be late in the term. There will likely be about six events. The College pool was scrubbed and refilled before the summer quarter began. It is now used in the mornings by women and from 2 to 5 in the afternoons by men.

Mr. Lawrence said that if there was demand a night would be set aside for townspeople. All interested are asked to call the gymnasium, Hanamo 670.

GERMANY WANTS COLONIES

Since Germany entered the League of Nations she has been demanding, with ever-increasing vigor, the return of some of her former colonial possessions. She would prefer to have them returned outright, but would probably be satisfied if she were granted a "mandate" by the League, like those under which the colonies taken from her and Austria-Hungary are now held by various allied powers. The League is now engaged in serious consideration of this problem.

It is, indeed, a problem to be taken seriously. It is easy to say that Germany, by her responsibility for the war, deserved to lose her colonies. The fact remains that their loss is felt more by Germany than any other penalties imposed on her, and she will never be satisfied until she regains possession or control of at least a considerable part of them.

The allies rightly regard German psychology as a factor to reckon with. It was largely the German feeling of being "surrounded by foes" and being forcibly prevented by them from her natural expansion that developed the mood in which the war was launched. If the German people, whether rightly or wrongly, develop a new "complex" of this sort, a national conviction that Germany is held down and persecuted and kept from her natural and proper growth for lack of colonial territory, there may be another national explosion.

It seems likely, for this reason and because the Allies are inclined to conciliate Germany now on General principles, that she may be given a mandate to govern part of her old territory, probably in Africa, where there is most of it available. Such action will come hard, because Great Britain, holding the lion's share of the mandated territory, never likes to let go of anything. But Britain has far more territory than she needs, and can well afford to give up some of it if that will promote better international relations.

THE FRENCH FLIERS

The public is glad that the search for Nungesser and Coli is to be continued until a thorough exploration of Newfoundland has been made. Although it is possible that those two courageous fliers fell into the Atlantic and may never be found, the hope is still strong that such is not the case and that their bodies may be recovered.

Many have hoped that the two men were picked up by some slow-traveling vessel—a tramp ship or a fishing boat without wireless and not destined to come into port early. That hope, now, is practically abandoned. But rumors persist that the Frenchmen in their "White Bird" did reach the coast of North America in a region wild and dangerous, where they suffered disaster far from human sight.

The airplane, Jeanne d'Arc, which is to be used in the search for them, is a Fokker monoplane, equipped with motor and compass such as Lindbergh used in flying over the Atlantic, but with pontoons instead of landing wheels. The three men who will make up the crew of this plane will fly over the trackless area of Newfoundland, taking pictures which may be studied afterwards and one of which may reveal the object of the search.

For the sake of the families of Nungesser and Coli, as well as their friends and the sympathetic people of two interested continent, may the Jeanne d'Arc succeed.

Shenandoah had between 25,000 and 30,000 visitors Sunday who motored there to attend the flower show and to inspect the two radio stations, according to the Shenandoah Sentinel. Old residents of that city say the crowds there on Sunday were "the largest they ever saw in that city." Parking spaces in the business districts and for blocks in the residence districts were filled with cars, while picnic parties were at the fairgrounds and in the parks of that city, while others picnicked in their cars and on the lawns. Cafes and hotels were also sold out on eats in many cases.

The government will have a record surplus of 600 million dollars at the close of the fiscal year June 30, according to Secretary Mellon. This year's undreamed of surplus is recognized as definite proof that there has been no lapse in the business activities throughout the country according to the experts in Washington. A tax reduction will be considered by congress at their session in December.

Marion County has 600 miles of all-weather roads, according to a statement of the Hannibal Courier-Post. Suppose we had 600 miles in Nodaway County, or can you suppose anything so wonderful?

Here's to Chamberlin also. He and Lindbergh may yet make it possible to take tea in England and be home for breakfast.

There is one commendable thing about the knocker. He aims high. He always aims at the man at the top or at the head of the procession.

What Other Editors Say

A FUNERAL ON MAIN STREET.

(An editorial from Liberty Magazine).

Sinclair Lewis has pilloried the people of the small town, taking all that is narrow and base, rude and crude among the people, and has represented them as the typical majority of all small towns. Either through purposeful dislike or through ignorance, he overlooks or omits all that is fine and sweet and beautiful.

This writer recently attended a funeral in a country town. He, with his brothers and a sister and other relations, brought back the mother that she might be laid at rest among her people, her old friends and neighbors. For more than twenty years she had lived in other places, returning only for a few brief visits. Her death had been sudden, and the only notice of it sent to the old home town was to those who made the final arrangements.

The little party on that sad mission reached the town in the forenoon of a beautiful day. Grouped on the platform of the little railway station were scores of those who had been their neighbors and friends, most of whom they had not seen in many years. Someone, without being asked, had chosen eight of those who had been closer and dearer to the family than others to act as helpers. Men had closed their places of business, or had dropped their work in stores, factories, offices, or the fields to come.

The church where she had worshipped was heavy with the scent of flowers. Someone had remembered that she always had loved yellow roses, and a great sheaf of them had been gathered in the early morning and brought as a last offering. Others had recalled her love for the great peonies that bloom in that part of the country, and had gathered bushels of them to offer.

One old neighbor, far past ninety, tottered forward to speak words of comfort. Old teachers who had aided her in training her family came, leaving their classes. Farmers from the country drove in, postponing their planting. Doctors and lawyers left their offices. Catholic and Jew and Protestant sat together, united and forgetting differences in a common bond of sorrow and sympathy.

At the cemetery, beside the flower blanketed raw earth that was presently to cover her, a little group stood apart, waiting, half shy, as if fearing to intrude—a group of colored men and women who had served her and helped her raise her children. Tears flowed down dark cheeks as they bade farewell to one they always had called "miss" since their mothers bore her as a baby in their arms.

Afterward, throughout the village, groups of old friends and neighbors gathered and, between smiles and tears, gently told little incidents of long-ago thoughtfulness or of some helpful deed or word.

She was only a woman, a mother, living her life in her own restricted sphere, doing well the small work that became hers to do, unselfishly and so unobtrusively she perhaps thought none knew of it. Yet they remembered each little kindness and good deed through all those years and came to repay with a sincere tear.

The city may be the place to live and strive and work in, but the country town is the place in which to die. Those who write of the narrowness and bigotry of the small town must themselves look upon it through a mist of cynicism, a have of bitterness, a fog of bigotry who fail to see the broadness of its sympathy, the depth of its love and charity which is revealed clearly when someone who is loved passes away.

Since we now have moving pictures that talk, it is hoped the spectators will remain silent.—Sturgeon Leader.

It must be very discouraging to insist, for 30 or 40 years, on an open door in China, and then have to come out through the transom.—Canton Press.

Set Your Own Trade Limits

About one in so often we hear a business man complaining that his "field is too small," or wishing he had established himself "in a bigger trading area."

Every time we hear that sort of complaint we are moved to recall the Strasburg, Ohio firm that, in a town of 1,000 people, does a million dollar business a year.

Or the South Dakota firm, in a place of 3,000 inhabitants, which has a turnover of $850,000 a year.

Or the store in Washington State, in a town of 1,000, that has a $750,000 gross per annum.

Or the Kansas store that, in a community of 1,500, has a $200,000 turnover.

Or many more examples of this kind that could be cited.

Every one of these stores had started small, and spread over the countryside until its profits come from miles around.

And every one of them has built its trade on advertising backed by service.—Ad. Route.

SOME BUSINESS GIANTS

The fact that merchants in some towns with a population range of 1,000 to 5,000 have been able to develop an annual sales volume of hundreds of thousands of dollars gets down to an intelligent use of the power of advertising—in having something worth while to advertise and never letting up on the prospects.

At Strasburg, Ohio, with less than 1,000 citizens the annual business of Garver Brothers amounts to a million dollars. Well named is Winner, South Dakota a town of 3,000 for the annual turnover of the Outlaw Trading Post is $850,000. The Lynden Department store at Lynden, Washington, manages to bring a gross revenue of $750,000 a year from a population center of 1,000. At Temple, Oklahoma, population 1,000 the B. & O. Cash Store sells $735,000 worth of goods a year. Fred P. Mann's store, selling to a community of 5,000 at Devil's Lake, N. D., has a turnover of half a million dollars a year. Sales of the Schaeffier Mercantile Co., at Hillsboro, Kansas, population 1,500, have totaled $200,000 a year.

There's no secret, nothing mysterious in these sales records, except the everlasting keeping after business. To borrow a text from A. E. Schaeffier of the Hillsboro store:

"We claim advertising is the medium that has put us on our present footing. In advertising we are very strong; we believe it to be absolutely necessary."

The moral of all examples is that the trade areas of small towns, when properly fertilized with copious applications of printer's ink, are capable of sustaining a phenomenal volue of business.—Nation's Business Magaizne.

ADVICE TO SENATOR REED.

(From the New York Times).

Senator James A. Reed has begun in Oregon a preliminary survey that will take him through a number of western and southern states. He will view the political landscape o'er. He will make speeches in every state which he visits. He will sow the seed that is to spring up, if conditions are favorable, in crops of delegates. Whatever weather his hopes may meet with in 1928, his enterprise is commendable. He throws away the pretense that the nomination should seek the man, not the man the delegates, and all elderly men will applaud his resolution for another reason. We are told that this or that person is too ancient to be a candidate for President. The old fellows may thrive in European statesmanship, but in the United States impetuous middle age must be served.

If this is tradition, let us see whether it holds water. It is said that the one unbroken tradition of American politics is only a feeble lingering superstition and doesn't amount to a hill of beans. How about the real or imaginary ban on hearty sexagenarians verging on the septuagnary period? Mr. Reed was born in November, 1861. Mr. Lowden in January, 1861. Here are two aspirants to whom, without regard to politics, the devotees of longevity must wish well. If Mr. Lowden is sedentary, Mr. Reed flashes with swift movement. Few livelier citizens are on the road.

One of Senator Reed's favorite subjects, the enormous expense of the primaries in Illinois and Pennsylvania, has perhaps not yet thrilled large numbers of persons as it has thrilled him; and it is rather inauspicious that he begins his expedition in the country that is thinking of nothing but Lindbergh; and even if it weren't, the floods have submerged Smith and Vare for a time. But the floods have also given an opportunity for Mr. Reed to demand a called session of Congress. Perhaps that is not an issue that reaches to 1928. Indeed, it seems moribund. He is expected to trot out another favorite topic, "international relations." This, too, is rather shopworn. Briefly stated, Mr. Reed's view is that the United States should beware of Europe, and paddle its own canoe.

There is an obstreperously living policy on which Mr. Reed has strong opinions. If he will tell the Democrats of Texas, Louisiana, Georgia and Virginia, all included in his tour, just what he thinks of prohibition he will do them a service. He will do himself a service among persons of whatever party who believe in honesty and courage. It is possible to differ with his judgment on many questions and at the same time to suspend one's own on him generally, and wait to see if he will liberate his soul on the one matter that most profoundly interests the public and that politicians are most afraid of. If Mr. Reed is trying to make landmarks on the sands of time he never will do it by pussyfooting. That is not his cue. And if he is going to "bust" "corruption," where can he find more of it to the square inch than in the enforcement and non-enforcement of the Volstead act?

URGES REFORESTRATION OF MISSISSIPPI VALLEY

The necessity of the government's doing some effective planning for the future to make another Mississippi flood impossible is brought out by an editorial in this week's Liberty. "Herbert Hoover," the editorial points out, "says that the levee system is the only possible cure for Mississippi floods. He believes the planting of new forests along the river's route would take too much time and produce only halfway results.

"Maybe. What has been stripped off the land in 150 years can't be replaced in one year or ten years. Now that the one-time sponge of forest and marshland edging the Mississippi has been crippled by man's nature-improving activities, further artificial devices are the only immediate cure. High concrete walls, for example.

"That is no reason for giving up any plans for reforestation. Do what is possible in the emergency, but do some planning for the future too."

First Photo of Chamberlin and Levine In Germany

Photo copyright, 1927, by NEA Service, Inc. Transmitted by radio and telephoto. Here is the first picture to reach America showing Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine after they had landed in Cottbus, Germany, on conclusion of their world record-breaking non-stop flight from New York. Chamberlin stands at the left, pointing to the broken propeller of their monoplane, "Columbia," while Levine, at the right, and a German, in the rear, look on. This picture, taken a few moments after the Columbia had come down in a swamp at Cottbus, breaking its propeller, was rushed to London by airplane, being the first picture to reach England. At London it was transmitted to New York by the Radio Corporation of America, reaching New York before any other picture. There it was placed on the telephoto wires and sent broadcast throughout the country. It took less time for this picture to reach the Democrat-Forum and Tribune from Germany than it took for Chamberlin and Levine to fly from New York to Cottbus.

Marriage License Was a New Thing in Nodaway Back in '81

Times change—so do customs and laws.

When a couple want to get married now, the first thing the prospective bridegroom does, after he finally gets consent of the bride, of course, is to secure a license from county recorder of deeds. In this county the fee is $1.50. However, the fee varies even in counties in this state, and is higher in other states—$3.50 in Oklahoma, for instance.

Back in the days when Missouri was not so old and Nodaway County was considerably younger, "the initial cost" for a marriage license was unknown.

Marriages were performed by justices of the peace, qualified judges and licensed ministers of the gospel, who, after performing the rite, made a certificate of the wedding, a copy of which was duly recorded with the recorder of deeds. This practice continued from the time Nodaway County was organized in 1845 to June 26, 1881, when a law passed by the State Assembly went into effect requiring licenses to be issued before a ceremony could be performed. The nominal "tax" in those days seems to have been $1.

Shown By Old Files.

The Maryville Republican of issue of June 30, 1881 says:

"No boys, you don't marry any more without license. Walk up to the Captain's office now, and take our your papers like little men."

The following week it had:

"Now some poor scamp of an editor, who wants to get married and hasn't the requisite dollar to get a license, is howling that the law is illegal anyway. The editor of the King City Chronicle is the fellow. Pass around the hat for him."

The Nodaway Democrat of issue of June 30, 1881 had:

"The marriage license law went into effect last Sunday."

The following week it had:

"The first marriage license issued for Nodaway County was issued June 30, granting permission to the marriage of Thomas Ager to Miss Mary Frye, by Rev. J. M. Parker."

They Framed 'Em Then.

In many a home in those days before June 26, 1881, the framed marriage certificate was practically the only ornament found hanging on the wall of the new home. Usually the certificate was very much decorated with scrolls and birds and flowers and contained cut-outs for the insertion of the bridal pictures of the proud owners of this paper. Indeed, there was some ministers who were rather proud of their own "phizzes" and inflicted them on the couples, willynilly, by presenting them a certificate which provided a place for the minister's portrait as well as that of the bride and groom.

J. N. Geyer, deputy recorder, dug up the first book in which a record of the issuance of licenses is given. The first recorded, stated that a license was issued to Thomas Ager and Miss Mary Frey, both of Maryville, the man being "of the age of 21 years," and the bride, "of the age of 18 years." This license was issued by Lawrence J. Growney, June 29, 1881. Mr. Growney had the title of circuit clerk and ex-officio recorder.

The certificate of marriage was filed the next day, stating that J. M. Parker, a minister of the gospel, performed the marriage ceremony. It was recorded by Theo. F. Jones, deputy.

Girl's Age Raised to 21.

The last law passed by the state legislature affecting the marriage of those persons who have elected to be married in this state, was passed in 1921, after the legal age of a girl was raised from eighteen to twenty-one. The law now provides that instead of the "over eighteen" the girl must be "over twenty-one" or else the proper consent must be given by parents or guardian.

West Dropped From New Social Register

(By George D. Crissey).

(United Press Staff Correspondent).

Portland, Ore., June 9.—The hard upper crust of high society collapsed here today and the far west returned to its own.

Once again the democracy of pioneer days prevailed, and the expressive phrases of loggers and cowmen were restored to grace. Each man was labelled either a "damn dude" or a "good stiff," and the charming hostess, Mrs. Sliddermann Johnes, was forced to respond to a commoner's greeting of "'Lo Sal, howza gal?"

The reformation, which applies to all the far west with the lone exception of San Francisco, was brought about by decision of the Social Register Publishing Company of New York to drop certain cities from its list and no longer to list the socially elect in the far west.

In brief, the summer number of Social Registers for western cities was issued today, accompanied by the sad refrain of that appealing song: "That's all there is, there ain't no more."

The summer issue will be the last Social Register to grace drawing rooms in Portland, Seattle, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Southern California and southern cities.

Lack of interest in the Register is ascribed as the reason.

Portland was calm as the crisis came. The one thousand persons named in the last book to be issued took the blow with remarkable fortitude. The three hundred thousand others were not interested.

CHAPTER 51.

Billy did not see T. Q. Curtis again until just before dinner time that night, when, on descending the staircase, she saw him in the front hall, in low-voiced conversation with his lawyer, Presley Warburton. The lawyer nodded to her grimly, but T. Q. greeted her with his usual grave courtesy.

Dinner was a painful ceremony that night. Nyda was still very pale and subdued; Winnie, who had returned from her father's bedside with encouraging news as to his condition, had been told of the robbery by Mrs. Meadows, and sulked a bit at not being allowed to talk of the exciting event.

Just before dessert was served, Sawyers brought Billy a telegram, which she tore open with trembling fingers.

"Off for Chicago. Don't worry. Will wire developments. Courage. Clay," was the laconic message, but it was enough to make her heart beat fast with excitement and hope.

She offered no explanation of the telegram, and T. Q., though he had studied her face keenly as she read the message, asked for none.

When the meal was over, Winnie skipped to the old man's side, and linking her arm in his and cuddling her cheek against the sleeve of his dinner coat, asked coaxingly: "Aren't you going to have a private detective to work on the robbery, Daddy Curtis? It's just an awful shame to lose all those lovely presents you gave us."

T. Q.'s smile was a little sardonic as he answered: "To tell you the truth, my dear, I hadn't realized until you spoke what the loss would mean to you girls. Let's leave it at this—if I don't recover the jewelry, working in my own way, I'll make your loss good."

"Oh, Daddy Curtis, darling!" Winnie cried remorsefully. "I didn't mean that! You know I didn't! But you always were the most generous dear in the world."

"I have every hope, however, that the things will be returned," T. Q. said distinctly, and Billy was sure that his eyes flicked an appeal to her.

"He thinks I'll confess and return the miserable stuff," Billy told herself, as she hurried from the room. She was profoundly grateful for the fact that she had an engagement for the evening with Bruce Kruger, Constance Bradley and Constance's latest young man.

When she returned at midnight, Sawyers met her in the hall and told her that T. Q. wanted to speak with her in the library.

She found the old man slumped in his chair. But when she entered he pulled himself up.

"Come in, my dear. I hope you have had a pleasant evening. I—I wanted to look into your eyes before you went to bed."

She understood. She came quite close to him and, raising her chin slightly, gazed upward with candid, clear eyes, which did not flinch at the sad question she read in his. For the third time in their acquaintance Billy Wells felt as if she were looking at the naked soul of Thomas Quinn Curtis.

"Mr. Curtis," she began gently, after that searching gaze had held unblinkingly for a long minute, "I want you to try to believe that I didn't do this thing. I left the house today without your permission, and I think I started something that will result in the clearing up of the mystery. I can't tell you what I suspect, for if I'm wrong, I would seriously injure someone. If I am right, you are going to be hurt—dreadfully hurt—when the truth comes out. I don't see how you can be spared. I'm sorry—so awfully sorry for all the unhappiness and pain which have come to you this last year."

T. Q. Curtis' breast rose on a great sigh, but the sternness of his face had relaxed noticeably. "Thank you, Billy."

The tears that wet her pillow that night were shed for T. Q. Curtis—not for herself.

It was almost exactly forty-eight hours after the robbery had been committed when Billy received her second telegram from Clay Curtis. It was as brief as the first: "Driving from Chicago. Arrive about nine tomorrow morning. O. K. Clay."

"I wish he wouldn't be quite so economical," Billy laughed, as she tucked the precious yellow slip of paper under her pillow. "I'd like to know just what he means by 'O. K.'"

Fortunately the next day was Sunday. There was little danger that Nyda or T. Q. would leave the house before nine o'clock, the Sunday breakfast hour.

Billy was in such a state of nervous excitement that she could not eat, a fact which Nyda, Winnie and T. Q. seemed to note, each with different emotions. They were still sitting around the breakfast table, each with a different section of the Sunday paper, when Sawyers threw a bomb into the quiet dining room:

"Mr. Clay Curtis is calling, sir."

T. Q. sprang to his feet, incredulous joy succeeding blank amazement on his stern old face.

"You say—my son—is here, Sawyers?"

"I've shown him into the library, sir. He has a—a young man with him, sir." Sawyers coughed as T. Q. was plunging out of the room. "He also asked to see Miss Nyda and Miss Billy, sir."

Billy glanced swiftly at Nyda. The beautiful face went suddenly white.

T. Q. Curtis came slowly back to the table, his keen narrowed eyes studying Nyda's betraying face. "I don't know what my son wants, Nyda, but—we'd better join him. Will you take my arm?"

But Nyda shook her head as she stumbled to her feet. Seeing that she was in a dazed condition, T. Q. grasped her arm, and, half supporting her, led her from the dining room, across the great reception hall, and into the library. Billy followed, feeling sick with dread.

"Hello, Dad. Would you mind closing the door? I don't want my friend here to leave unceremoniously. Sit down, Banning!" Clay turned from a quick handshake with his father to bark the order to the sullen-faced man who subsided into a chair in the middle of the room.

"I'm glad to see you, sor but—I'm afraid I don't understand," T. Q. began ceremoniously.

Nyda had halted at the door, and Billy, afraid that she would try to escape and almost hoping that she could do so, took her place by the stricken girl's side.

"You will pretty soon, Dad. Sorry, but you will stand aside? Do you recognize this man, Nyda?" His left hand fell heavily upon Banning's shoulder, but his right hand did not leave his pocket, which bulged with hideous suggestiveness.

Nyda passed her tongue over her dry, open lips, nodded and finally spoke in a gasp. "It's—it's Eddie Banning. I—I used to know him—"

"Used to know me, you damned double-crosser!" Banning shouted, his face livid with hatred. "Looka here—!"

"Look here yourself, Banning!" Clay sprang forward to grasp the raging man by the arm, while the bulge in his pocket prodded into Banning's ribs. "Sit down now, and stay there." He forced him into a chair, then, with the concealed pistol still pointing through his pocket, addressed his father.

"Billy came to me the other day, dad, and told me you thought she'd stolen a lot of stuff out of your safe. You ought to have known better than that, Dad. She told me a lot of suspicious things about Nyda and Eddie Banning, things she'd been too honorable to run to you about, but which pointed to some close connection between Nyda and this scoundrel here. She couldn't tell you, even when you accused her of the theft—"

"I didn't accuse her, son," T. Q. protested, passing a shaking hand over his bewildered eyes. "She could not satisfactorily explain her actions of that night—"

"She shouldn't have to!" Clay retorted hotly. "She's not a child, to be held accountable to you or anyone else. But she admitted to me that things looked black against her. At any rate, I got on Banning's trail in short order—thought he'd light out for Chicago and he did—and found him there, trying to pawn the stuff. He'd pawned two or three things here and there—I've got the pawntickets with me—but the rest he still had on him when I caught up with him. No use going into the story of just how I did it. I told him Nyda had confessed to her part in the robbery—that she'd admitted letting him into the house and out again, and had given him the combination of the safe—"

"It's a lie, Eddie! It's a lie!" Nyda screamed. "Oh, he'll kill me now, he'll kill me!"

"You're damned right I will!" Banning struggled to free himself from Clay's grasp. "A fine wife you are, squealing on your own husband! But you'll go to jail with me!"

"His wife!" Billy's sharp cry of amazement shattered the sudden silence in the room, just before Nyda Lomax Banning crumpled to the door in a faint.

(To Be Continued)

Nyda confesses in the next chapter and T. Q. Curtis proves himself a merciful man.

Seek Marks of An Early Civilization

Hundreds Of Visitors Drawn To Excavations At Rattle Snake Mound, In Illinois.

East St. Louis, Ill., June 9.—Hundred of visitors are daily drawn to the excavations being made at Rattle Snake Mound near East St. Louis. More than 100 human skulls and skeletons have been taken from the mound and many others remain to be yet uncovered.

These towering mounds were built by a race of people said by paleogolists, archeologists and scientists to have been Mound Builders. The hitherto unsung romance of a pre-historic people who more than 6,000 years ago inhabited the regions centuries later became known as the American Bottoms, is now being literally dug up from the tomb, to be revealed to the world in striking semblance of their primitive state.

It is said to have been definitely established by archeological investigations, that there flourished in the new world some 10 or 12 centuries before Christ, a civilization that rivaled in culture the kingdoms of the old world, and many hold to the belief that the Mound Builders are the forefathers of the pre-historic Maya Indians of Mexico, and of whom it is said by Archaeologists, climbed the enviable heights of civilization comparable to that of any race of people of the same period several centuries before Christ.

Mysteriously lost sight of for thousands and thousands of years, theirs is a civilization crowded with romance, almost wholly hidden by the immovable walls of time, and for ages considered an inpenetrable mystery; but, thanks to our undaunted archaeologists, impelled by the lure of knowledge, and the sport of conquest, are now slowly but surely removing the restraining barriers that hide the mysterious past from the present.

200 ATHLETES VIE SATURDAY

ENTER SIXTH ANNUAL TRACK AND FIELD MEET.

FROM SIXTY COLLEGES

Championship Events To Be Held At Soldier's Field, Chicago.— Many To Defend Titles.

Chicago, June 9.—Nearly 200 athletes from 60 colleges and universities throughout the United States, who have won places in conference or sectional meets are to compete in the sixth national track and field meet, sponsored by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, here tomorrow and Saturday.

The championship events will be held on Soldiers' Field, on the shores of Lake Michigan. The stadium is the site of the 1926 championships and the Army-Navy football game of 1926.

Although many of the 1926 champions graduated last June, several title holders will be present to defend their honors. Outstanding athletes who graduated are Roland Locke, Nebraska sprinter and Bud Houser, Southern California weight hurler.

Charlie Judge, Notre Dame, mile champion, Spence, of City College of Detroit, Vic Haggard, Texas, who set a record in the high jump, H. Chere, Illinois College broad jumper, and Northrup, Michigan javeline tosser are among the 1926 winners who will compete in Saturday's meet.

Preliminaries in all events are to be held tomorrow, to insure a speedy and efficient running of the finals on Saturday.

The track has been rolled and raked and baked into championship form, and new records may result if weather conditions are fair, according to Maj. John L. Griffith, Commissioner of Western Conference athletics, a member of the committee in charge.

Bucky Hester, Michigan sprinter, who showed well in the Penn relays, is favored to replace Locke as the 100-yard title holder.

While some of the larger Eastern universities have "high-hatted" the N. C. A. A. meet, others have entered teams. The I. C. A. A. A. meet a fortnight before the National championships is claimed by the Eastern schools to be the real national championship, while schools from the midwest and the south are flocking to the Chicago track to contend for what they believe to be the national honors.

If the weather is fair on Saturday, Alonzo A. Stagg, University of Chicago coach and chairman of the meet committee, believes that attendance at this year's meet will establish a record.

"Most Wounded Man" Restored to Health

Private Wallace H. Smith, Shot 133 Times in Belleau Wood, Survives Forty Operations.

Washington, June 9.—Veterans of the fighting second division who swapped tales at their convention here recently of gastly hours in Belleau wood nine years ago, saw many changes in comrades of those days but had the most difficulty recognizing Private Wallace H. Smith, "the most wounded man in the A. E. F."

Smith, who lives here, came back from France almost a skeleton, weighing 95 pounds, and his body shot through with shrapnel, suffering from 123 wounds incurred in the fighting at Belleau wood, where the fighting second helped to stop a mighty German drive on Paris in June 1918.

The man, who called old buddies by their first names, weighed 245 pounds and did not look like one who was given up by physicians and underwent forty operations. He was once reported dead by the war department.

Smith is the only survivor of a party of replacement troops that lost their way one night and at dawn found themselves in no-man's land only a half mile from the German lines.

3,000,000 Members in 'White Collar' Unions

Clerical Workers in Europe Show Greater to Organze Than in United States.

Geneva, June 9.—"White Collar" workers to the number of 3,000,000 are now grouped into great international organizations perfectly capable of defending their rights, according to the International Labor Bureau here which has just completed an investigation of the subject.

The most important of these "white collar" organizations is the International Federation of Commercial, Clerical and Technical Employees which was established at Vienna in 1921. It now comprises 41 national organizations in 19 different countries and has a total membership of nearly 800,000

A second "white collar" organization is the International Federation of Hotel, Cafe and Restaurant Employees with headquarters at Berlin. Its membership now totals 70,000.

The third great group is the International Federation of Christian Unions of Employees which comprises eight national organizations in six different countries. Headquarters are maintained at Paris. Its total membership is 500,000 and it has affiliated with it the German Federation of Unions of Employees with another half million of members.

The fourth great international organization of salaried "white collars" is the International Federation of Independent Unions of Employees with Headquarters at Strassbourg. It comprises eleven associations in eight countries and has total of 350,000 members.

Finally there also exists the International Federation of Associations of Commercial Travelers, with headquarters at Paris, and comprising twenty-nine organizations in thirteen different countries.

The tendency of white collar workers in Europe to organize is greater than in the United States, it was said.

Butler—Bates County's World War memorial was formally dedicated here on May 30.

BILLY EVANS Says

New Balls Help Batting.

Babe Ruth says he believes the increased hitting during the past 10 years is as much due to the many new balls that are used as to the so-called "rabbit" or lively ball.

"Having pitched for many years before turning outfielder, I know how much more difficult it is to be forced to pitch new balls than an old discolored pill," says Ruth.

I am inclined to agree to a large extent with the premier slugger. In the old days, says 20 years back, the umpire started all games with four new balls. During the rest of the contest they accepted any ball tossed from the home bench that was regarded as satisfactory.

Now, we start each ball game with 48 brand new balls and should we run out of our regular suply, accept none but new ones.

That will give you some idea of what Ruth means when he says the constant use of new balls has increased batting more than anything else.

Do Figures Stand Up Always.

Figures do not lie, they say. That may or mayy not hold good for baseball.

However, it is certain that the success of Pitcher Wiley Moore of the New York Yankees is going to cause the magnates to take an increased interest in figures, pitching averages in particular.

Moore was bought by the Yankees on the strength of having won 30 games in a minor league. This, despite the fact that he was 30 years of age and had been labeled not a good prospect by the big league scoutse.

All the major league clubs obtain a set of special averages on the minors that are constantly kept up to date. These are for the information of the owner, the manager and the scouts as to likely material.

In the future it seems pretty certain that this special data will be carefully perused by the various club officials.

A pitcher who can win 30 games in any league must have something. Yet it is a matter of record that not a single big league scout reported favorably on Moore, who has been a sensation in relief roles for the Yanks.

Carroll Has Big Chance.

Manager Dan Howley of the St. Louis Browns is sure Owen Carroll will develop into a winner for Detroit.

Carroll, it will be recalled, is the former college star. While at Holy Cross he won 48 out of 50 games he pitched.

Jumping direct to the majors from college circles as a member of the Detroit Tigers he finished the season of 1925 with varying success. He was sent to the Toronto club of the International League under option, for more seasoning.

Last season at Toronto, Carroll had Steve O'Neill, former American League star backstop, who is back again with St. Louis, as his roommate. Under the direction of O'Neill Carroll came fast and soon was one of the most effective pitchers in the league. He won 21 while losing only eight games and ranked second among the winning pitchers.

Momentary lapses of wildness seem to be Carroll's only fault. He has poise, ability and courage, three most important pitching assets. He needs only control to be a star.

Honolulu, Here They Come!

Miss Mildred Doran, pretty 21-year old school teacher of Flint, Mich., aims to be the first woman to take an airplane ride across the Pacific. With Pilot Augie Peddler, she plans to fly from Flint to San Francisco to Honolulu in a giant monoplane. Peddlar and Lieut. Ever Sloniger, a friend of Lindbergh's, flipped a coin to see who should make the hop, which is being backed by William Malloska, wealthy oil man. Miss Doran is learning to be a pilot and has had considerable flying experience.

The first balloon ascension was made in 1783 in Paris by the Montgolfier brothers, according to an answered question in this week's Liberty.

LINDBERGH A 'FREE LANCE'

LOCATES AT ST. LOUIS FLYING FIELD IN FALL OF 1925.

UNDAUNTED BY FALLS

War Department Shows Him Only Aviator With Four Parachute Escapes. —Ranked High In Training.

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1927, by the United Press)

CHAPTER NINE

The fall of 1925 found Charles A. Lindbergh a free lance aviator at the Lambert Flying Field, St. Louis. One afternoon he was called upon to take up a new plane for a test flight. The plane flew satisfactorily for a time and then Lindbergh began putting it through a series of loops and turns, designed to prove the air-worthiness of the machine.

At 2,500 feet Lindbergh sent the plane into a tail spin. It came spinning down but as it approached the earth it failed to respond to the controls and continued its giddy plunge.

Lindbergh stayed with the ship, fighting to get it righted again, until only 250 feet from the ground.

Then he quickly leaped from the plane and came swinging down in a parachute, landing on his back with terrific force, in a garden adjoining the flying field and the plane only a few yards away. The drop had been so short the parachute had not had time to break the fall entirely and when flying field attendants came up, Lindbergh's nose was bleeding and they feared he was severely injured.

Up Again In An Hour.

"Defective design somewhere," spoke up Lindbergh. "I couldn't come out of that tail spin. Little close oo."

He dusted himself off, rested an hour and went up again to test a second plane for "defective design."

That was the second escape by parachute Lindbergh had had from a disabled plane. Later he had two others and his record in the war department at Washington shows he is the only aviator in this country who has had four such escapes.

Lindbergh had come to Lambert Field from Kelley Field Texas, where he had completed his course at the army advanced flying school. March 15, 1925 and had been rated as a pilot and given a commission as a second lieutenant in the army air corps reserve. On receiving his commission he outfitted himself in the uniform of his rank, was photographed, and until he joined the Missouri National Guard approximately a year later, thought no more of military flying.

His Record Remarkable.

A glance through his record at Kelly Field shows that his standing there was remarkable. In 17 of the 24 subjects in which he was examined, his standing was rated as "excellent", in five as "very good" and in one, property accounting, as "fair." In military law, army regulations, field service regulations, guard, aerodynamics, meteorology, handling of the Lewis machine gun, and synchronizing gears he had an average of 99 out of a possible 100. In subjects having to do with navigation and with radio his marks were around 90. In only six subjects was he below 90.

On leaving Kelly Field he headed for St. Louis, a place he had visited once previously. That was in October, 1923 when he arrived alone and unheralded —as always—in a decrepit appearing old bi-plane and entered it in the International Air Races. He then had been flying less than two years. A few days after the races Harlan Guerney, Lindbergh's flying mate, was injured in a parachute jump from Lindbergh's plane and Lindbergh remained in St. Louis until Guerney recovered, selling his plane in the meantime and buying the old-Standard bi-plane in which he arrived at Brooks Field, Texas, the next year for his army training.

It was while free-lancing at Lambert Field in 1925, that Lindbergh made his connection with the Robertson Aircraft Corporation, which led him into the air-mail service and indirectly played a part in his crowning venture, the flight to Paris.

Lived Exacting Life.

He joined a group of brother aviators in maintaining bachelor quarters in a little frame house near the flying field. There he settled down to the exacting life of a commercial aviator. He was up early, slept when he could, and always subject to call. But life was not all work. Aviators, when not flying, are a light-hearted crew who worry little and Lindbergh, when not employed, was usually busy at his favorite diversion, playing practical jokes. He delighted in loosening up a bed so it would collapse about the time a comrade tried to sleep in it. He never seemed too tired after a long trip to turn loose his pranks on whoever might appeal to him as a likely victim.

It was at this time that Lindbergh became the jaunty, well dressed aviator, when he was flying, that he proved to be the evening he arrived in New nations blase metropolis with his faultless attire. But when he was not in his flying costume he still seemed the gangling country boy he was in 1921 when he arrived at Lincoln, Nebraska, and began learning to fly. He usually wore blue serge and regardless of how carefully his clothes might have been selected, his suit always seemed too small and his arms too long.

Joins National Guard.

His commercial flying was varied that summer when he and Phillip R. Love, who had been a class-mate at Kelly Field, flew to Chicago in DH-4 planes, blazing the trail for the St. Louis to Chicago air-mail route, which later he was destined to fly with the mails. He joined the One Hundred Tenth Missouri Aviation Squadron, National Guard, at that time, became flight commander and was when he obtained his rank of captain, the rank which he still holds.

April 15, 1925, Lindbergh became the "Flying Mail Man" when he made his first flight over the Chicago-St. Louis air-mail route with United States mail. During the following winter he and Thos. P. Nelson, also a graduate of the Kelly Field, army flying school, made aviation history with their night flying between those two cities. The route was not lighted in any way. They flew just as Lindbergh flew into Paris, with unlighted planes. No matter what the weather Lindbergh always seemed ready to go. He would take the air with the mail when no one else cared to go aloft and at the end of the winter his record showed that he had delivered the mail at its destination with as great regularity as had fliers on many of the well-lighted routes. Fog, snow and sleet all were met and overcome by him and it was in this treacherous flying that he gained much of the skill which permitted him to outwit a sleet storm in the North Atlantic while flying to Paris.

Recognizable, isn't it, this 1909 photo of Uncle Sam's own Charles A. Lindbergh? It was taken at Washington with his late father, at that time Congressman from Minnesota. Little 8-year-old Lindy then had no expectation of the fame and glory which is now his.

Life Is Vexing for Nicaraguan Envoy

Dr. Don Alexander Napoleon Caesar Chamorro Would Change His Name, But Reporters Won't Let Him.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer.

Washington, June 9.—The Hon. Senor Dr. Don Alexander Napoleon Caesar Chamorro, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States from the Diaz government in Nicaragua, has been welcomed in some sections of the strenuous diplomatic social life here with a cold shoulder.

The Hon. Senor Dr. Don Alexander Napoleon Caesar Chamorro, envoy, etc. —which is his official title—is invited to all the big parties at the Cuban embassy and the Panamanian legation. He is invited to all the functions thrown by the secretary of state and the Pan-American Union.

But when Chamorro's own racial brethren, the other Latin-American diplomats, have their balls and receptions, Chamorro generally has to stay home.

All this, mind you, is not because Chamorro is personally offensive. The trouble simply is that most of the people south of the Rio Grande haven't yet recognized the Diaz government of Managua.

The fact might be inserted here that Alexander Napoleon Caesar Chamorro —who, bearing the names of four great conquerors, certainly should be able to sweep all before him—has undertaken to be known in this country as Cesar, or Caesar, rather than Chamorro. The State Department has co-operated wholeheartedly with him in this earnest endeavor.

The Chamorro name is in rather bad repute. When Chamorros were swapping the Nicaraguan presidency within the family, there were 15 Chamorros in high government positions. It was Gen. Emiliano Chamorro who felt so keenly the disgrace of letting the presidency get outside the clan as to stage the famous 1925 coup d'etat which returned him to power. The State Department virtuously refused to recognize Emiliano as president.

Since the department accepted Diaz, every effort has been made to show that he had nothing to do with the coup d'etat. This explains why it was more diplomatic not to have a Chamorro as minister to the United States, which is the second most coveted job in Nicaragua.

But Chamorro still remains the gentleman's last name. Imagine Dawes or Borah trying to persuade the world that his name was Giblet or Swisnoosky! It is true that Latin-Americans retain both paternal and maternal surnames, but the giveaway comes when correspondents of South and Central America insist on referring to the minister as Chamorro so that the folks down there will know whom they mean.

Edina—A street dance will be one of the features of Edina's Fourth of July celebration.

Slow Tailor Causes Boy to End His Life

Warsaw (United Press).—A slow tailor caused the suicide of sixteen-year-old Adam Tytan of this city.

Tytan wanted his new dress suit for a special party. The tailor failed to keep his promise to have it ready. Tytan had boasted to his boy companions that he would be the most elegantly dressed man at the party. Chagrined at his friends ridicule he returned home and leaped to his death from the third story window of his father's apartment.
